Arlington County & WETA Dedicates "Campbell Avenue" in Shirlington

Washington, DC – Jackson & Campbell, PC is pleased to announce that the Arlington County Board and WETA will dedicate "Campbell Avenue" in Shirlington, Virginia, adjacent to the WETA building, on June 2, 2007 at 1:00 pm. Campbell Avenue commemorates the lives and accomplishments of Edmund and Elizabeth Campbell. It will replace what currently is 28th Street South between Shirlington Circle and South Stafford Street, and South Stafford Street between 28th Street South and South Arlington Mill Drive. For more information, visit www.weta.org.

Edmund D. Campbell is recognized for his dedication to the Arlington community for many years, having served as the Arlington County Board's Chairman twice. He was also a leading lawyer in the D.C. region, most noted for his efforts in mobilizing forces which eventually led to school desegregation and equal working rights in Virginia. Mr. Campbell was widely respected as a Supreme Court advocate, having led the efforts to defeat "Massive Resistance" to integration; to assure "one man, one vote," and in other areas, such as the rights of conscientious objectors. Mr. Campbell died on December 7, 1995.

Elizabeth Campbell is recognized for her service to the Arlington community by serving as Chairman for three terms on the Arlington school board. She supported her husband's resistance to segregation, and joined him in his efforts to make education accessible for all Virginia residents. She later founded WETA, the Washington area's public television station, spearheading its national success until her death on January 9, 2004.
