

James P. Schaller Named to American College of Trial Lawyers Board of Regents

James P. Schaller, a Director at Jackson & Campbell, has been named to the Board of Regents of the American College of Trial Lawyers. He was inducted during a ceremony held at the College's annual meeting in London, England. He will serve a four-year term as the representative for Maryland and the District of Columbia. Schaller, who concentrates his practice primarily on insurance coverage and professional liability litigation, was first elected a Fellow to the American College in 1984. He has served as state chair for D.C. for the past two years.

About the American College of Trial Lawyers

Created in 1950 to recognize excellence in trial lawyers, the college includes members from every segment of the civil and criminal trial bar in the U.S. and Canada. Its purpose, in addition to identifying and recognizing outstanding trial lawyers, is to improve the standards of trial practice, the administration of justice and the ethics of the profession. The Board of Regents, the governing body of the College, extends the invitation for Fellowship only after careful examination of the nominee's experience, skill, ability and ethical standards.